Michael Kühnen

The Second Revolution Volume I: Faith and Struggle

Part 1

FOREWORD by Christian Worch

I got to know Michael Kühnen in the summer of 1977 during a street fight with the commune. Already at this first and circumstantially short encounter, he and the comrades, of the leisure club Hansa, led by him, made on me the best impression imaginable. It took only a short time until I left the NPD and made myself available to Michael Kühnen, as a member for the new party planned by him.

In the fall of 1977, the AKTIONSFRONT NATIONALER SOZIALISTEN was founded by Michael Kühnen. In a few months we became known beyond the borders of West Germany. The program designed by Michael Kühnen and the concept of an open, provocative appearance proved to be excellent. We were only a small group of young and self-sacrificing idealists, with no backing, no connections, no influence and no financial support. But we were not deterred and we were successful. For the first time, our enemies were forced to take note of the existence of organized and mostly young National Socialists.

As Michael Kühnen's deputy, I was present at just about all the actions. In addition, I worked closely with him in all organizational matters. During this time I got to know and appreciate him as a person, as a comrade and as a political leader.

No one could compete with him:

With his complete commitment and willingness to make sacrifices, with his political farsightedness, his tactical and strategic sense. But above all, with a charisma that attracted mostly young activists. He is a comprehensively educated man, decisive, tenacious and courageous, an excellent speaker and organizer. He is a man who did not claim leadership for himself out of selfishness or conceit, but on whom it was thrust by his comrades and who accepted it because we know, as he does, that he was and is the best man for it.

After his arrest in the summer of 1978, I was able to lead the ANS for another year and a half until I myself was arrested. During our imprisonment, the political climate changed. Persecution became stronger and, as a result, many groups broke up. But the spiritual climate, the readiness of young people in particular to stand up for the old and yet eternally new idea became better. It was as if fate was taking a breather:

To wait for Michael Kühnen's release.

In December 1982, the time had come, and from then on, things went from strength to strength. The Frankfurt Appeal and the unification with the NATIONAL SOCIALISTS followed. This was followed by sensational public rallies, which were even widely reported abroad. This was followed by a unification of all significant National Socialist forces into a unified organization. From March on, I, too, was able to take an active part in this again. As a man from Michael Kühnen's closest environment, I know very well how difficult our work was. There was a lack of vehicles, printing presses and other technical equipment, meeting places and connections. State persecution alternated with terror on the part of the community. In the first six months of 1983 alone, there were a total of three attacks on Michael Kühnen

And the constant shortage of money was particularly depressing. More than once we drove to a rally and didn't even know if we would have enough gas for the return trip.

But all these problems could not discourage Michael Kühnen. They only strengthened him in his determination and his commitment. He was the driving force, the engine that spurred the comrades on to ever new actions and led them to success.

Although, according to official information from the Office for the Protection of the Constitution, we had no more than 270 members, the ANS/NA and all its subsidiary organizations were banned on December 7, 1983. But for the first time in the history of the West German constituent state of the Federal Republic of Germany, a ban on organizations was ineffective. Michael Kühnen himself said on the day of the ban to comrades and representatives of the press:

"We are banned. So what? Sieg Heil!"

The community that was created through a year of struggle and sacrifice could not simply be banned. Organizations can be dissolved, but the people who fought for them remain. And the great feeling of having worked for a common cause under a unified leadership, that also remained.

After only a few months, leading West German politicians had to admit that they had struck a blow with the ban. The reaction was increased state terror against Michael Kühnen. Once again, preliminary proceedings were brought against him, he was dragged before the courts, arrested by the police at every available opportunity under the most implausible pretexts. We knew that it would not be long before Michael Kühnen would again disappear behind the bars and walls of a democratic prison of opinion. He also knew this, was prepared for it and ready for it. The organized German National Socialists stand unshakably behind Michael Kühnen. This alone proves what charismatic charisma Michael Kühnen has, to what a high degree he enjoys the confidence of his followers. There is no doubt that this will remain so. Michael Kühnen became party history during his lifetime. And even if he were torn from our midst today, his name would remain immortal as long as there are National Socialists in Germany, in other words: as long as there is Germany.

About the book

THE SECOND REVOLUTION was written while in prison and smuggled out illegally. The first publication was to be in the KRITIK VERLAG of comrade Thies Christophersen. But before that could happen, the political police intervened. The manuscript was confiscated and Thies Christophersen and Michael Kühnen were charged. Although the verdict was overturned because the book had not been printed, this was the first time in West German judicial history that a court had attempted to convict men who had not yet printed a book, but had intended to print and distribute it. This in itself is proof of how explosive THE SECOND REVOLUTION is for the rulers in West Germany.

We managed to obtain a copy of the manuscript by adventurous means. For some time photocopies of it were distributed underground, so that even in the case of an extensive police action at least one copy of the manuscript would be preserved. THE SECOND REVOLUTION is a fundamental work, a theory, which is at the same time an outlook. It explains not only why and how we are fighting, but above all with what ultimate goal. It is a program, a comprehensive guide on how National Socialism can be realized in this time and in this country, against all odds. And at the same time, this book is a declaration of war against both classic and new enemies of the movement, a declaration of the revolutionary character of our idea.

What is decisive about this book is not only the farsightedness that is expressed in it, the unity of conviction. No less important is the fact that it is an easy-to-read book. In contrast to the long-winded explanations of national scribblers, Michael Kühnen speaks the language of his people and he writes the way he speaks. It is a book that can be understood even without having attended a university or a high school. It is a book that should be known and, above all, heeded by as many people as possible. It is a revolutionary book and its spreading is an important step on the big goal to the national and socialist revolution, to the renewal of people and idea.

INTRODUCTION

I am a National Socialist.

I am a fighter - not a great orator. And certainly not a writer.

I am 23 years old - not an age for memoirs or political philosophies.

I am in mental detention - I lack books and documents to support my remarks.

This writing will be suppressed - too encrusted are the views of the bourgeois world about the so-called "neo-Nazis". Brainless thugs, political rockers, psychopathic afterbirths of the gas chamber party, that's what we have to be in the eyes of our enemies, that's how the rotational synagogues of the system press - from the Jüdische Allgemeine to the Arbeiterkampf, from Springer to the UZ and from the Vorwärts to the National-Zeitung - want to show us to the people. To prove that we are different is one task of this book.

I write this book as a fighter, as a practitioner, as the founder and leader of a young front to which I have something to say - not as a theoretical blatherer! My language is not pale gibberish, but bloody faith for which I am imprisoned. I am not impartial, not objective and do not want to be, because it is about the future of this people, a people, which counts to the greatest and bravest races of the world history and now has come on the dog in such a way that one's heart tightens.

This book wants to accuse and condemn, to give expression and form to the wild hatred of my young comrades, but also to draw a new and better Germany, in which the Germans are once again among themselves: free, proud, happy and united in the FOURTH REICH!

There is not much to say about myself. I was born on 21.6.1955 in Bonn-Beuel - ten years after the destruction of the Greater German Reich. I am the only child of a middle-class family that is completely horrified by the activities of their offspring. I have been interested in politics since my earliest youth and have had quite an eventful political time since the age of 14:

I was a supporter of the NPD, which, however, was too moderate for me from the beginning, and became the first and probably only national democratic student spokesman in Bonn. I was a small activist of AKTION WIDERSTAND, whose salute we still use today. For a brief historical moment, the W was the unity symbol of all national forces in the Federal Republic. The failure of AKTION WIDERSTAND became, after the failed attempt of the NPD to jump the 5% hurdle, the second tragedy of the national movement in only five years. It failed because of the cowardly philistinism of so-called "national" reactionaries and - as we know today - because of the treachery of Freemasons and Zionist servants who nestled in the national camp. Without ever changing my convictions, I joined the Junge Union at the same time for tactical reasons, only to break away from it after only a few weeks, appalled by the exclusive careerism of the CDU juniors who had grown old at an early age.

After 1973, movement seemed to come into the national scene for the first time. A group of young patriots ready for action - perhaps 400 in the beginning - had left the bourgeois NPD and founded the AKTION NEUE RECHTE (ANR), which expanded explosively. Here we boys met real National Socialists for the first time, who made no secret of their convictions. I was probably the first to distribute ANR leaflets in my area, the Rhein-Sieg district. But the rapid growth of the ANR proved to be more of a curse than a blessing. Sectarians appeared, splitters raised their heads and the ANR broke up!

Everything collapsed for me! I now knew what to think of bourgeois-democratic and national philistines. Only 18 years old, I had already passed through four groups:

The JN, the youth organization of the NPD, then Junge Union, Aktion W and finally AKTION NEUE RECHTE. At that time I considered myself a fascist, was a fanatical admirer of Benito Mussolini, whose struggle for power was relived by me again and again with hot hearts!

What separated me from National Socialism at that time was what separates all those who believe in the propaganda lies of the victors:

I did not understand what National Socialists had against Jews. I committed one last political error before I first withdrew from politics at the age of nineteen and volunteered for the Bundeswehr:

The convinced fascist Michael Kühnen began out of pure perplexity a flirtation with the national socialist communism of the new (Maoist) KPD! Also this time was only short, but taught me to recognize that also in the left young idealists are active, who mostly want the best. Since then my hatred is directed to the liberal-capitalist system, which sets the best sons of this people against each other to save itself and to the criminal system of Bolshevism, but not to the simple, misguided front fighter with the other field post number - the one with hammer and sickle. How would this corrupt system begin to tremble if, just for a moment, the mighty revolutionary currents from right and left united and the occupying servants in Bonn, these stooges of foreign interests, were swept into the abyss!

From 1.7.1974 to 1.9. 977 I was a volunteer in the Bundeswehr, with my last rank being lieutenant. On the various courses I received almost without exception good evaluations. For almost two years I stayed away from politics, even though my temper sometimes threatened to get the better of me. It was only with the founding of the Action Group FOURTH PARTY (AKTIONSGEMEINSCHFT VIERTE PARTEI, AVP) that I saw a political opportunity again and participated from the beginning in the organization of this new right-wing party, which had a budget of millions at its disposal for the 1976 Bundestag elections. In Hamburg, the situation was particularly favorable, since we had a "black-white-red" state association. From the beginning, at least four right-wingers sat on the Hamburg state board of the AVP, two of them National Socialists! I was a member of this board from its founding until the eventual failure of the election candidacy, first as an assessor and finally as deputy state chairman and designated candidate for the Bundestag.

But during this engagement I got to know Wolf-Dieter Eckart, a graduate engineer of about 35 years at that time and head of the "Freundeskreis der NSDAP". Eckart is "the" National Socialist pioneer. As early as 1967/68, he began preparatory work for the founding of the Bund Deutscher Nationalsozialisten (BDNS), which was banned in 1969. This man strengthened my conviction that I was on the right track. Whereas until then I had been able to say, "To my right is only the wall," today the sentence holds true: "I am the wall!"

Hamburg is a stronghold of new-generation National Socialists. Since the end of the 1960s, the state protection authorities have recorded the existence of a "regionally significant" NS group. Under changing leadership and with ever new names, National Socialists sought a viable, legal way out of the ghetto of the old reactionary right. First with the JN, then in the Standarte 17. Juni, and finally as the Freizeitverein Hansa, the forerunner of the Aktionsfront Nationaler Sozialisten. In the NSDAP/AO, Gau Hamburg, young and old National Socialists have likewise been fighting since 1971 for the lifting of the NS ban.

So the ground was favorable when, on May 8, 1977, with the support of two comrades, I organized the Freizeitverein Hansa to give National Socialism in Hamburg new momentum and a new strategy. The path out of anonymity and into the people began. With ever new ideas, the State Security was provoked, the press was forced to report, and the people finally learned: WE ARE BACK!

It has been an arduous journey, paved with arrests and investigations, loss of jobs and homes. The terror increased, the system fought back. From January to July 1978 I was arrested eighteen times, the last time I was taken into custody. And yet I have committed no crime:

I love my people, revere Adolf Hitler and speak my mind - that's why I go through the prisons of the democrats!

But I am not going alone. Behind me and the other leaders of national and socialist combat units, there are already hundreds of young comrades who do not shy away from any risk, who are ready to sacrifice their future, their youth, even their lives for their people if necessary! First came 18-20 year olds, now already 14-16 year olds put themselves under our flags. And there are more every day. Soon there will be thousands:

The swastika and Jew protection paragraphs will fall and the National Socialist German Workers' Party will again hold the fate of our people in its hand! For this day we live, for this day we fight, for this day we die! We young patriots, leadership as well as followers, do not want to be anything else than servants of a coming NSDAP, which is already fighting in the underground and will sometime intervene in history again!

The NSDAP/AO is the world's largest National Socialist propaganda supplier!
