83 - NEW FRONT

The New Front is an ethos community of National Socialism of the new generation. It derives from organizational history:

by the "Bund Deutscher Nationalsozialisten" (BDNS), founded in 1968/79 JdF by Pg. Wolf-Dieter Eckart and banned in 1969/80 JdF, and its successor movement "Freundeskreis der NSDAP"; as well as by the underground organization "Nationalsozialistische Kampfgruppe Großdeutschland" (NSKG), founded in 1971/82 JdF and smashed in 1973/84 JdF, and its u.s. foreign organization, which, under the leadership of the u.s. German Pg. Gerd Lauck, has been operating since 1973/84 JdF as a foreign and structural organization of the NSDAP (NSDAP/AO).

Today's Gesinnungsgemeinschaft der Neuen Front was founded on May 8, 1977/88 JdF by Pg. Michael Kühnen and two other comrades as a National Socialist underground organization "SA-Sturm Hamburg 8. Mai" (outwardly "Freizeitverein Hansa") within the framework of the NSDAP/AO. Pg. Kühnen had previously belonged to the "Friends of the NSDAP". On November 26, 1977/88 JdF, the "Action Front of National Socialists" (ANS) emerged from the SA Storm, additionally as a legal front organization. After the arrest of its leading cadres, the ANS organization was dormant from December 1980/91 to November 30, 1982/93 JdF. Thereafter, Pg. Kühnen again took over the organizational leadership and on 15 January 1983/93 JdF facilitated its merger with the "National Activists" (NA), under the leadership of Pg. Thomas Brehl to form the "Action Front of National Socialists/National Activists" (ANS/NA). The ANS/NA was banned from the JdF on December 7, 1983/94.

The formation of successor or replacement organizations was subsequently abandoned. The former comrades of the ANS/NA, together with new recruits, now form a political community of opinion without organizational structures and additionally work in independent front and mass organizations. The community of thought is grouped around the information letter on the situation of the movement, "The New Front," after which it takes its name, and finds its foundation in reader circles of the New Front. The Neue Front sees itself as the legal arm of the National Socialist movement of the new generation and thus as the nucleus of the newly founded National Socialist German Workers' Party.

On the basis of the programmatic commitment to National Socialism, the New Front develops a clear strategy and tactics and, building on this, implements a preliminary general political line. It does not seek to gather all German National Socialists, but rather those who are willing to submit to its leadership and general line in a disciplined manner, in order to achieve the goal of reestablishing the NSDAP. After that, it dissolves and its cadres and followers make themselves available to the party. Leaders of the Gesinnungsgemeinschaft of the New Front were:

May 1977/88 - July 1978/89 Pg. Michael Kühnen
Aug. 1978/89 - Dec. 1979/90 Pg. Christian Worch
Jan. 1980/90 - Dec. 1990/91 no recognized leadership.
Jan. 1991/91 - Nov. 1992/93 Suspension of the organization
Dec. 1992/93 - March 1994/94 Pg. Michael Kühnen
March 1984/94 - April 1988/98 Pg. Thomas Brehl
since May 1987/98 Pg. Christian Worch

84 - NEW ORDER

National Socialism as a worldview and at the same time a way of life gives rise to the party (see National Socialist German Workers' Party) in order to assert itself in power politics. The work and struggle of the party are based on a party program, from which the general line in the struggle for a National Socialist revolution is derived. Under the conditions of a Western-type democracy, this revolution takes place legally and strives for state reform, which in turn ultimately leads to a National Socialist people's state. This is characterized by the fact that it is a total state, in which the National Socialist party triggers a total political mobilization, becomes the sole political will of the nation (see Will) and realizes its party program.

The goal of this total mobilization is the realization of a New Order. After the fulfillment of the party program, the party has fulfilled this historical task and dissolves itself. The New Order is thus realized in the historical stages of the period of struggle, the revolution, the state reform and the National Socialist People's State. It is essentially characterized by the power-political order of the large European living space through a Fourth Reich (see also Europe), by the realization of the guiding principle that characterizes all community life, "common good before self-interest," and by the breaking of the bondage to interest.

The New Order is the ultimate political goal of National Socialism. But it does not promise a "paradisiacal" final state of history:

The New Order is not a land of milk and honey, but a traditional Aryan high culture (see Tradition and Aryans) on the basis of thinking, feeling and acting in accordance with the species and nature, which enables and promotes the preservation and development of the species of the Aryan race.

The New Order is characterized by workerism and motherhood as ethical principles of both sexes, (see Ethics) as well as by orders, which, as male alliances of fighters and leaders, are carriers of the culture (see Soldiering and Leader Principle). At the top, even after the dissolution of the party, are the Führer and the Senats leader orders of the New Order.

85 - NEUTRALITY

National Socialism is for the peoples of the Aryan race (see Aryans) the long sought Third Way, beyond capitalism and communism, independent of West and East. It is thus hostile to the life and economic order of liberal capitalism as well as to Marxism and fights for the freedom of the Aryan peoples against the imperialism of the superpowers USA and Soviet Union.

In the nuclear age, however, this conflict can no longer be fought by war between states, but must be conducted by a struggle of world views, ideologies and values. That is why the New Front's community of thought strives for a neutral Germany. Only strict state neutrality can restore Germany's freedom and sovereignty and offer protection against nuclear destruction as well as against continued submission to the will of the victorious powers of World War II.

It is no coincidence that the system parties ruling in the FRG, as tools and vassals of the victorious powers, try to make the term "neutralism" a political dirty word. They fight with it the only way to German freedom, which would be the end of their power borrowed from the victorious powers. They are also fighting the only way to the unity of the German nation, because only neutrality and its supplementation by a wise, national policy towards the East can bring about the reunification of all Germans and the reclamation of primeval German settlement space in the East. That is why the New Front fights for a united, independent and neutral Germany!

86 - NSDAP/AO

The Aufbau- und Auslandsorganisation der Nationalsozialistischen Deutschen Arbeiterpartei is a political front organization of the new generation of National Socialism and forms its illegal arm. The NSDAP/AO is banned in Germany and therefore works underground propagandistically against the Nazi ban and for the reestablishment of the NSDAP. It organizes itself into a large number of underground cells that maintain no contact with each other and are guided and supplied with propaganda material by a foreign headquarters in the United States.

Gerhard Lauck

At the head of the NSDAP/AO is Pg. Gerhard Lauck, an American-German who uses his U.S. citizenship as a weapon in the fight for German freedom. The NSDAP/AO cadre is made up of patrons who are in constant contact with the foreign headquarters and pay regular patronage contributions. Beyond that, the NSDAP/AO does not recognize formal membership. A member is one who professes allegiance to the NSDAP/AO, follows its instructions, and disseminates its propaganda material.

The NSDAP/AO was founded in 1971/82 JdF as a foreign organization of the "NS-Kampfgruppe Großdeutschland" by Pg. Lauck and continued to operate independently in its present form after the latter was broken up in 1973/84 JdF.

The NSDAP/AO is the main carrier of the strategic aspect in the National Socialist struggle for freedom. It proves purest style and tradition of the historical NSDAP.

It was the NSDAP/AO that developed the strategy of the National Socialist movement of the new generation, which is still valid today, avoiding all possible and conceivable dead ends:

it successfully fought the fruitless cowering and camouflaging of National Socialists in reactionary, national associations (see Reaction), avoided any personality cult, resisted the temptation of armed resistance (see Werewolf), and strictly emphasized the importance of the party, its primacy over the party leader (see Fuehrer), and the necessity of party formation.

From the Sturm-Abteilung of the NSDAP/AO emerged since 1977/88 JdF the present-day Gesinnungsgemeinschaft of the New Front, which in comradely solidarity and on the same strategic basis forms the legal arm of the movement, creatively applies the strategy to the conditions of the legal struggle and developed tactics for this struggle.

NSDAP/AO and Neue Front together form the precursors of the new NSDAP.

Fun Under the Swastika

National Socialist activism has its lighter moments, too! Here is an excerpt from Gerhard Lauck's booklet "Fun Under the Swastika".

46.

Veterans of the White Power days in Chicago's Marquette Park, twenty years ago, like to recall one of the most hilarious incidents that ever took place at the Party's Headquarters, Rockwell Hall. A Stormtrooper had just returned from two weeks leave in Arizona, where he had visited the Painted Desert. There he had found the large, perfectly preserved skull of a buffalo, its great horns still intact. He was showing this remarkable discovery to his comrades in the meeting room when the night duty officer reported a suspicious car making several slow passes on 71st Street in front of the headquarters.

An idea flashed in the fertile brain of the returned Stormtrooper. He ordered all the lights extinguished and the front door unlatched. Then he threw a long army blanket over himself. It draped down to his ankles, while on his head he balanced the gaunt buffalo skull, gripping its undersides with his fingertips through the blanket, which allowed him some visibility through its porous texture.

When the duty officer called out that the unidentified car was slowing to a halt in front of Rockwell Hall, the disguised Stormtrooper stepped from behind the open front door onto the sidewalk and paced with ghostly dignity towards 71st Street, the buffalo skull gleaming with macabre effect from the street lights. As luck would have it, the suspicious car was packed with Blacks, who were obviously up to no good. But when they beheld the bizarre apparition slowly approaching them from "that Nazi place," their eyes bulged from their burr heads. Their mouths dropped to the floor-boards. Turning whiter by the moment, they panicked like a pack of terrified monkeys and began beating and screaming at their driver, who was too stupefied with shock to move. But when the horned monster was within arm's length of their vehicle, he came to his senses enough to put his pedal to the metal. The car burned rubber down 71st Street, careening at top speed with its crew of frightened Black back towards Black Town, and was never seen again.

For the rest of that night, Rockwell Hall echoed with the laughter and toasts of beer to the innovative Stormtrooper.
